

SECURITY SEAL TAPE

Security seal tape is a plastic product made from 23-micron PET film with glue coverage. Its main purpose is to protect packages from unauthorized access. Any attempt to open the tape leaves permanent marks, which makes it easier to detect manipulation or attempted break-ins. The tape is printed in red with a black inscription "SECURITY SEAL TAPE", which further increases its security function. There is also an option to personalize the tape by adding a custom print.

This product is used in a variety of industries where there is a need to secure packages against theft or manipulation. It is particularly popular in the electronics, cosmetics, pharmaceutical, food (such as packages containing alcohol or tobacco products), automotive and clothing industries.

Security sealing tape can effectively replace traditional packaging tape in cases where there is a need for additional protection against unauthorized access to package contents in addition to the standard security function. It can be used to seal cardboard, pallet, foil and paper envelopes, keeping shipments secure at every stage of transport and distribution.
